Forecast For Scotland
Issued by Met Office Aberdeen
at 0400 on Monday 05 Jul 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Rather cloudy further showers, some heavy. Misty east coast.

Today:
Rather cloudy with scattered showers, heavy and prolonged at times. Some brightness breaking through this afternoon, best in the Northwest and becoming quite warm. Cooler in the east with patchy haar, extensive from Fife northwards.

Tonight:
Staying cloudy, misty across northern Scotland with some showers continuing, especially in the northwest, heavy at times. Drier, clearer conditions developing across the southern half of Scotland.

Tuesday:
A drier, brighter day with some sunshine. Still some showers breaking out with the odd heavier one possible. Some mist patches in the northeast and over Western Isles. Light winds.

Outlook for Wednesday to Friday:
Further showers on Wednesday, frequent and heavy at times over eastern Scotland. Showers becoming fewer and lighter on Thursday, then a lot of dry weather with sunny spells on Friday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.